parts of the town, but as the parlier gales had blown off most of the fruit and laid flat the late corn in the exposed places, there was not much left for Monday's gale to wreak lis vengeance upon. Along the shore some injury to boats and yachts is reported but our coasts were fagored by the wind-not blowing directly upon shore. Thesing from the south and southwest. It is the northerly gale that makes bavoe on the Weymouth shore. At Hough's Neck, City Point, Wintirop, Huil and other places great destruction was wrought among the yachts and probably $100,000 will hardly cover the damage to yachts, boats and float stages along the shores of Massachusetts, while on the southern coast still greater damage and the loss of many lives resulted.

Silver is dethroned and gold alone is king. The surprisingly large vote by which the Wilson repeal bill passed the House on Monday practically settles the fate of silver in this country for many years to come. The Senate has yet to act and the President to sign the bill before it can become a law but it may safely be presumed that the result is now a mere matter of time. The weight of opinion of almost the entire press and people of the financial castern half of the country has been felt in Congress, as shown by the vote on Monday in the lower branch. The Senate will undeubtedly bend to this same demand for repeal after the usual amount of discussion. There is, then, no longer any danger that silver will become the standard of the country as it will be practically demonetized after the bill shall have passed, and the confidence which became unsettled on account of the fear of a silver basis ought to be quickly restored.

The trouble with silver as a standard for money is its fluctuating value and the fact that it exists in such immense quantities.

great spray of Marcela Kiel roses, and she welcomed me in the kindest possible manner.

"My husband has been singing your praises, Mr. Pumper," she said.
Her husband! I hate mystery.

Then I thought that I had fathomed it. I am an ingenious man. Batchelor had evidently come into money. He had taken the name of Lightfoot. It was all as plain as a pikestaff.

"Mrs. Lightfoot," I began.

"Mrs. Lightfoot," I began.

"Mrs. Lightfoot," I began.

"Mrs. Lightfoot, Hy on please," said the lady, with a silvery laugh.

I was dumfounded. He certainly introduced her to me as Mrs. Lightfoot, But before I could recover from my surprise the door opened, and the delicious little vision of Biond street sailed into the room.

"Silster—twins evidently," I thought, attempting to grasp the situation. They were as like as two peass—you couldn't tell vother from which. "Hang it," I thought, attempting to grasp the situation. They were an alter as I the were married to both of them."

And then Batchelor came in, and we had a capital dinner and were as Jolly as sandboys. After dinner he explained things.

"Pumper," he said, "the very day after I parted from you two years ago I met Mrs. Batchelor and her charming mother. I fell in love with them at once. Mrs. Lightfoot's a pretty woman, as you see, but in widow's mourning she's absolutely irresistible. I was determined to propose at once, but I couldn't make up my mind. Like the ass between two 1 ndles of hay, I hesitated.

"Should it so Angela or Angelias" I could never get either of them alone. That was my difficulty. Fortune favored me at jast. I went into the hotel garden one evening, and I found Mrs. Lightfoot buried in thought, gasting on the beauties of the summer night. I made up my mind at once. I would persone in form.

"But she might to care for me. Angela's grief might be too recent. I would be ambiguous. I would leave a way of retreat open—should it be so, I would at once ask for the hand of Angelina.

"Mrs. Lightfoot,' I said sentimentally, seating mysel at her side, 'this

This is the story as he told lit to me the other night, just outside the Fort street depot:

"If I were lazy or extravagant I shouldn't ask you or any other man for money. I'd be ashamed to. I'd say I deserved to starve and freeze. It is in nowise my fault that I am brought to this condition."

"It's circumstances, I suppose?"

"Exactly. I'd been working for a man in Indiana for nearly a year and had saved up 8100. I started out to go into partnership with a man buying apples. We expected to make 8500 in two months. A mule suddenly kicked the man, and he died—the man did. That's circumstances, sin't li?"

"Certainly."

"Then somebody robbed a store, and as they couldn't find anybody else to arrest they collared me. I want't within I's miles by the store, but they are not at all particular in Indiana. They didn't claim I was guilty, but said they paid their constables for bustling and expected them to arrest everything I'ying around loosa. Circumstances again, eh."

"Looka like it."

"Looka like it."

"I wasn't content to stay in fail. It was boo confining, and the sanitary arrangoments were bad. I sent for a lawyer and gave him $50 to advise ms. He advised me to give the other $50 to the jaslier to let me out. See the hand of circumstances."

"Yes."

"Came out dead broke and headed for Detroit, expecting to meet friends who would help me. On the way up a tramp

How and When to Appty Line.

H. Stewart's practice in applying lime to any crop for the benefit of the clover following it has been to prepare the land in the best manner, for lime will not make up for any deficiency in this respect—turning under what manure has been appropriated for the crop, then spreading the lime prepared by air slaking, by exposure to the weather in heaps in the field, and then following by the seed. The seed and the lime are both harrowed in together. He says in The Country Gentleman:

As crimson clover is sown in the fall, it may be put in with wheat or rye in the south, where it will stand the winter, but as this will be hardly safe in the north, the glover may be sown in the spring with oats or alone. In that case the lime will be applied to the land as soon as the seed is sown, or before if it is thought more convenient. But when the clover is sown for the sole purpose of plowing. The land is then harrowed and the following crop is put in, or if it is to be corn the lime may be applied in the spring, just before the ground is finally prepared for planting. The principle of it is that the lime is applied when and in what manner it may have the best effect upon the green manure for it's decomposition.

Some of the farmers say that as their money or labor helped build the roads they have a right to go over them with such wheels as they please. They have a right to go over their parlor carpets with skages on, but it would be cheaper to use s broad soled shoe. And while they may have paid for the carpet no one of them paid all the expense of the roadmaking or road repairing.

Foultry Fences and Yarda.

The Southern Fancier says that the cheapest fence is made of plastering laths, with three-inch strips to tack to. The best fence is made of two-inch mesh, No. 10 wire netting. In all cases where there are more than one yard of fowls, there should be a two-foot base of 13 inch plank to prevent the cocks from fighting and disfiguring themselves.

BASIC SLAG.

Compared With Other Sources of Pherwhalt and the strips and about it. Basic slag, otherwise known as "odorless phosphate," "iron phosphate," etc., is a product of steelmaking. All iron ores contain more or less phosphorus. It tends to make iron or steel brittle and is therefore objectionable, and one great problem of the iron maker is to remove it. The bessencer process of steelmaking is used chiefly on ores low in phosphorus, but about 13 years ago a new process was invented that usest all former methods. A quantity of lime is dropped into the modern iron. This instantly unites with the phosphorus and is held in the form runs off. The lime and phosphorus, with the sand and other impurities in the ore, form the basic slag. Stone insist that it is inferior to finely ground to a fine powder before it is used as a fertilizer.

In this country opinions vary as to the real value of basic slag. He had placed a fine diamond ring on her finger in token of their betrothal.

For awhile she was supremely happy. Then a terrible thought occurred to her. Had her sweetheart ever loved another? Was she the only girl who had ever won his affections?

She would ask him and end the doubt, "Frank, dear!"

"What is it, sweetness!"

"Has any other girl ever worn this ring!"

"No, indeed! I get a new ring every time I am engaged."—Pittaburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

In a little country theater an amateu theatrical performance was given in which the moon was obliged to appear severs times. During one of the moonlight scene a strong draft of air extinguished the lam which was responsible for the moonligh whereupon the here exclaimed andibly:

"What the blank does this mean?"

"The wind has blown the moon out," responded the manager audibly.—Texas Siftings.

"Helpi help!" cried the bather. "Pin drowning! Toss me line."
"I haven't got a line," shouted the man on shore, "but if you'll keep up five minutes I'll run up to the hotel and get my awimmer's manual. It'll tell you what to do in a case of this kind."
But it was not necessary. A kindly wave came along and washed the bather sahore in safety.—Harper's Bazar, Bural Etiquette.

It was at a country Sunday school pionic, where great quantities of the regulation satables—chiefly apple pies—had been brought for the children to eat. Little Mary Jane, from away back in the hills, was there with her mother, who kept an eye on the child constantly to see that her behavior was perfect.

Presently Mary Jane was observed digging into an apple pie with her knife, whereupon her mother spoke up: "Mary Jane Berks!"

"What he you a-doin!"

"Eatin pie, ma'am."

"What be you a-doin!"

Are You Troubled With Rheumatism? The person who can answer "No" to the above question has every reason to be truly ankful. There can be no possible doubt as to the truth of this statement. DO YOU THINK RHEUMATISM IS INCURABLE? A great many will answer, Well, I have had it a long time and I have tried every-nit that has come before my notice, and I still have it, and as far as I am personally accrued it seems to me that I always will have it.

HAVE YOU EVER TRIED "RENOVIA?" Some will answer and say "No;" never heard of it. Others will say "Yes," but it didn't do me any good. Bill others will say and have said Yes, I have not only tried it but am ready to testify that it has helped me. Others will say, If I thought it would help me I would try it. To those who have tried it and have not seemed to realize that it had helped them.

DID IT COST YOU ANYTHING TO TRY IT? No, it did not; all must say that. To those who have tried it and seem to think that it did not help them

George was looking intently at one of the gas tips, and his brain machinery was grinding exceeding fine material, I could see.

"Well, what is it?" I asked, looking up and around for a stray June bug or some other bird of plumage.

"I'm just thinking," George said rather dreamily, "I can improve on that gas tip. I'll do it. I've got it sure." Then he began drawing things on a piece of paper that looked like deformed church steeples. He said they were gas tips.

For a day or, two George ate very little. I afterward learned this is common with inventors, as they are able to go for weeks at a time without touching a morsel. Their brains stop working when their owner eats. was the tangible outcome of his thinking.

"Isn't that splendid?" he said, with ecstasy, holding it up before me. His black eyes glistened.

"Yes, it's very pretty," I replied. "Will it work?"

"You bet it'll work. The user will get a large and steady flame, with no waste of gas and without-third the usual pressure. I'll show you."

George got up and adjusted it to the chandelier. He got out matches and then turned out the remaining gas jet. Fully 14 matches were struck while we sat in the dark. I held my breath because my hold on solemnity befitting the occasion was fast loosing.

He said many things which I could not be led to repeat. The sanctity of a private home should not be invaded. It was his right to say things, as he paid the rent.

The thing did not work. I could see

There is in Galloway, Scotland, an ancient ruin known as Sweetheart aboy. Within its ivy covered, storm battered walls lies buried the affectionate add devoted Derrogill, with the heart of her husband, John Baliol, embalmed upon her breast: Lovely in their lives, in death they are not divided. The crumbling masonry is still and must ever be a romance in its symbols of death and decay, telling every day, as it has for 600 years, the thrilling story of a woman's tender love and devotion.—Exdidn't answer.

He finally secured a couple of feet of small rubber hose that he had used in

"By gracious!" George exclaimed, "isn't that a dandy sprinkler? I'll get sensible Points About Tipa.

The greatest abuse of the tipping system in New York is in the fees to janitors and other servants connected with apartment houses. It has become a custom almost too strong to ignore in some apartment houses to pay the janitor, bell by, elevator boy, etc., certain amounts every month or fortnight—this without any regard to whether the servant has rendered any particular service or not. The result of this indiscriminate tipping is quite natural—you get no particular service.

Not a few tenants of apartment houses have had an experience with janitors which makes blackmail preferable to the risk of the repetition of these experience. As in the case of waiters, there are a good many annoyances to which tenants may be subjected which caumot be cured with a club and which do not even form a substantial basis of complaint. And they are not less aggravating because you can't got away from them or resent them. But to simply pay a man indiscriminately just because he is there is a plan whichereleases him from any obligation whatsoewer.

I make it a rule and can-recommend it after some experience to pay with reasonable liberality for any special reasonable.

I make it a rule and can-recommend it after some experience to pay with reasonable liberality for any special service—that is, any service above and outside of that which the man is employed to render to every temant in common. And I never tip such men-on general principles—that is, indisarimmately. If an understanding to that effect is established at once upon going into a new flat, you will avoid all the lils to which others are subjected and have at call those who are not only ready and willing, but eager to serve you. A Pariotic Daughter.

A young lady, the daughter of a western farmer, whose heart overflowed with patriotism, quiletly left her comfortable, home, cut off her beautiful hair, donned male attire, enlisted in a company and went directly to the seat of war.

During the home life she had been the milkmaid, and her kind treatment of the bovine tribe of the farm had made her a special favor te. But one of the lacteal tribe was her special favorite and whose reciprocal 1 re at meeting was always demonstrated. When mustered out of service, she returned to her paternal home, her habiliments being those of the heroes of the war, and politely requested permission as a stranger for entertainment over light, which was readily granted by the kind host to a returning soldier. tributed and Valuable Pasters Grasses.

Timothy, red top, orchard grass, June grass and indeed most other of the grasses throw their seed in the fall, and if the grass is allowed to stand it will sow its seeds in July and Angust, and the seeds will come up that fall and renew the grass in many cases by this self seeding. If we ought to sow at the same time that nature sows, it would therefore appear that fall is the season. Butfall is not always the best time, everything considered, for each individual farmer. It may be that we have no land ready at that time. It may be the best way for us to sow the ground after other crops have been taken off, and we must adapt ourselves to such circumstances as best we can. The objection to sowing in the spring is that there is a strong growth of the annual weeds which come up the same time as the grass. Pigweed, wormwood, redroot and many others are

JUNE OR BLUE GRASS.

One of the most widely distributed and valuable of all our pasture grasses is that known as June or spear grass in the east and blue grass in the west and souther (Poa pratensis), Fig. 1. This native American grass is the base of all our old seeded meadows and pastures, as well as of the creasing from the roots as well as from the seed. So hardy is it that it appears to grow underneath the snow, through which its purple green, spearlike blades may be seen pricking erect and vigorous, even in midwinter. Its dense sod, while affording the best of pasturage and hay, is, as every farmer knows, the surest of fertilizers when turned under and planted to Indian corn. The blades of this grass are long, sharply keeled, of a full green color and very abundant. Its stalks vary in height from 1 to 3 feet, and its open, spreading heads flower, in New York and New England, from the lat to the 18th of June; in the west and south from two to four weeks earlier.

At the same time that June grass blossoms comes orchard grass (Dactylis glomerata), Fig. 2, a fine, rapid growing species, the only one of its genus, and sounlike anything else belonging to the order that no one can mistake it. This grass was introduced from England, where it is often called "cock's foot grass." from the shape of its flower head. The blades are of a dull, bluish green color, very long, open and abundant, and for rapidity of growth equal-ed by none other. The stalks vary in height from 2 to 4 feet, and the flower head consists of from six to eight large, alternating clusters of spikelets, the lower one of which projects some distance beyond the others. The color of the flower varies from illac to a straw tint. This grass, from its rapid growth, on fertile soils easily affords two crops of hay. It has been a favorite in the west rather than in the east, where, however, it has of late years become common.

The idea of a bee escape was born in the shape of a little cone, through which bees could pass, but not return. Time has metamorphosed it into various forms. In England they are called supercleaners. A board is made of the size to exactly fit a case of sections, with a round hole about an inch in diameter, and the escape fits over it. When it is desired to remove the bees from a case of sections, it is raised up, the escape placed underneath. If this is performed in the evening, the bees will all have gone below by morning. Using no precantion to secure her neck and face (as she did not believe in it), she washed her scalp with it for several days, with the effect that not only did hair grow upon her head, but also upon her whole neck and face, which it was found very difficult of removal. Serve them piled up with sugar sprinkled over them.

Mrs. Harrison's Illustrated Description of a Bee Escape.

Mrs. Harrison, whose success in bee-keeping entitles her remarks to consideration, says in a communication to The Prairie Farmer that the trade in honey now demands that it shain be stored in one pound sections of the smoothest and whitest wood and that the honeycomb shall be of snowy whiteness and free from any discolorations. In order to preserve its pristine loveliness it should be removed from the bees as soon as scaled to keep it from being travel tained, as they frequent middly pools and are not always careful to wipe their feet. Bee culture for several seasons has been under a cloud, owing to low prices for the product and poor seasons, and beekeepers have sought out many inventions to cheapen its production and have given to us the bee escape. Of all the wise words spoken by the late John Philibrick, none were more true than these; "To cultivate the conscience and to strengthen it so that it will exercise complete away over the life and actions of an individual is the highest aim of education, and shy system of training and intellect which does not embrace this is a mackery. The teacher who does not acknowledge his obligation to attend to this, let his sentence be. Thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting, and let his kingdom be taken from him."

LAKE STREET, EAST WEYMOUTH. Are You Troubled With Rheumatism? The person who can answer "No" to the above question has every reason to be truly ankful. There can be no possible doubt as to the truth of this statement. DO YOU THINK RHEUMATISM IS INCURABLE?

A great many will answer, Well, I have had it a long time and I have tried every-thing that has come before my notice, and I still have it, and as far as I am personally concerned it seems to me that I always will have it. HAVE YOU EVER TRIED "RENOVIA?"

Bome will answer and any "No;" never heard of it. Others will say "Yes," but it didn't do me any good. Still others will say and have said Yes, I have not only tried it but am ready to tentify that it has belied me. others will say, If I shough it would help me I would try it. To those who have tried it and have not seemed to realize that thad helped them.

DID IT COST YOU ANYTHING TO TRY IT? No, it did not; all must say that. To those who have tried it and seem to think that it did not help them

Now Much and How Long Did You Try It? And How Long Mave You Had Rheumatism? Now these two last questions go well together. Consider them, for it takes longer to untic a string with two knots in it than it does one, and it requires more patience on the part of the sufferer who has had likeumatism a long time than on the part of the one who has just found out that he has Rheumatism. We will let you try RENOVIA free. If it helps you we will charge you serenty-free cents per week as long as you take our Specific, and if it does not help you it will only cost you the trouble of coming after it. Call on or address.

the President was waiting to make it a law by a stroke of his pen the moment it passed the upper House. But here it seems to be doomed to indefinite postponement or uter defeat. The composition of that higher branch of American government is such that personal linerests overshadow national ones and the wish of the majority must go unheeded and the wheels of industry be held in check.

The race between Pillabury, Hart and Greenhalge for the nomination for governor by the Republican party seems to be close and uncertain. Either may be the winstr. All are good men and the party will be honored by either of the three as its standard bearer. Perhaps the sentiment of the republicans of this town is more largely in favor of Greenhalgs but the full work will undoubtedly be east this year for the nominee of the party, whoever it may be, even if the "dark horse" that so often comes in at the finish should in this case be the final choice. The indications are that it will be a Republican year, in Massachusetts at least.

How to Make a Carrot Hanging Hasket.

Cut off the crown or large end of a sound carrot to the depth of about four inches. Invert the part cut off and scoop out the inside like a cup, half an inch thick at the sides, an inch thick at the bottom. Suspend it with cords run through the top of the cup and hang in a window, keeping it full of water. The leaves growing out from the crown or the bottom of the cup curl upward as they grow and soon cover it with green.

How to Tell When a Little Child is Really

Little children are often sick enough to require the best and most careful medical treatment before the most watchful parents know anything of it.
They will play about listlessly perhaps,
but making no complaint, until suddenly they will fall over on the floor, and in a minute the whole -household is alarmed.
Mothers and nurses should watch carefully over a child's evacuations and see that they are regular. Notice its breath, its color and its spirits. If a child is feverish and fretful and cries for nothing for a day or so, something is wrong.
If its breath is bad, if it is restless at night or feverish or has no appetite, and particularly if bright pink spots show in one check or the other, it is time to take action and find out first what is the trouble. If the trouble cannot be discovered, it is a measure of safety to call your physician before a disease has a chance to settle firmly on the tender little life. It is safer and cheaper to have your doctor once when you suspect a dener than to lave him three times a

How to Make Buttermilk Biscuits.

How to Make Buttermilk Biscults.
To the country wife they are not uncommon, but to the city married woman they are rare. Neither yeast nor baking powher is required in their composition.

In the country wife they are the composition of the country of the composition.

Laborate of the committe introduced and solion it to rise until morning. Then take the usual amount of flour used for the family, with which salt and soda are sifted, using one-fourth teaspoonful of the latter ingredient. Use lard of sufficient quantity, theroughly mixed with the right proportion of flour. Then take the batter, which serves in the place of water. Care must be used in not getting the dough too thin to roll. After the bread is ready for the stove, cook in a quick oven. The biscults will be found far richer and sweeter than the ordinary water and baking powder ones.

A LOVERS' QUARREL.

"Yes."
"Then why is he not coming?"
"He had an engagement," I mumbled.
"For goodness' sake, child, speak out.

"Have you broken off your engage-ment?"

"Yos," I burst forth. "I hate him, and I will never speak to him again." Then I began to weep copionaly.

"If you're going to how," said Aunt Maria, with bitter irony, "you had better leave the room. I shall require a full explanation tomorrow from both you and Mr. Johnson."

I fied up stairs and did not appear again that evening. I passed a wretched night and had a fearful scene with Aunt Maria the next morning. She stormed and expostulated, but I remained firm in my resolve to return Dick's ring and presents that very day.

Accordingly I spent a couple of hours in crying over them and packing them up.

einded the vigilance of his keepers and escaped.

"He's mad," I whispered to Aunt Maria. "For goodness sake humor him or he will murder us both. I have always heard they must be humored."

Aunt Maria, however, paid no attention, and I almost doubt if she ever heard me.

"Let me pass, this instant, sir," she gasped, crimson with wrath.

"Never! never! till you promise to be mine."

"Never' never' till you promise to be mine."

At this point, I regret to say, my aund toot her temper altogether, and raising her umbrella she brought it down or her suitor's head with such force that she quite crushed in the top of the bowler hat he wore, and which fortunately protected his skull. For a moment he seemed petrified with astonishment. Then he sprang to his feet, and seizing Aunt Maria in his arms lifted her boddly from the ground and carried her along the path. She struggled violently, and I followed, screaming for help.

The lunatic strode on until he reached the gate which led into a field, on one side of which ran a rather high stone wall. Upon the top of this wall he placed my unfortunate aunt and then stood and calmly surveyed her.

"Not till I have your promise to marry me," replied the lunatic. "I am quite prepared to remain here until tomorrow morning if need be," he added, with great coolness.

"Oh, aunt, do say 'Yes," I implored, but at this our persecutor turned upon me. "Will you have the goodness not to interfere?" he said, so fiercely that I was terrified and shrank back.

For about 10 minutes Aunt Maria sat on that wall and raved. Then she burst into tears. At this juncture I perceived of his coat, and the next instant there was a flash of steel. He had drawn a knife.

"Oh, Dick!—oh, my darling!" I screamed, "he will kill you!"

In that moment I forgot our quarrel. I forgot everything except that I loved him better than anything in the world, and that he was in peril of his life, and rushing forward I grasped the madinan's arm and hung on to it with all my weight. Aunt Maria screamed lustily for help, and as I spun round with the combatants I caught sight of two men running across the field.

Aid was near, so I clinched my teeth and held on like grim death. In a few seconds—it seemed like an eternity to me—the men were on the spot, and after a brief struggle the lunatic was secured and disarmed by the two keepers, who had been searching for him all day. As for me, the danger being over, I promptify fainted away. When I came to myself, Dick was kneeling beside me, supporting me in his arms.

"Are you all right?" he asked anxiously.
"Yes," I replied, with a smile, "I am after all?"

I leaned against his breast in silence, and he kissed me very tenderly.

A Mileft Quotation.

LAYING TILE DRAINS

ter Gets Into the Tile-

porous-file. You don't want that kind of tile. The harder it is burned the better.

In reply to the query how close must the tile be placed, President Bloss said: There is no rule that can be followed. In clayer ground the tile must be closer, say from 16 to 20 feet, while in certain loams equally good drainage may be secured at 40 to 50 feet apart. The next question which may arise is the size of the tile to be used. This depends first on the method used in laying the tile and second on the fall or grade. First, if the tile is laid by guess or by a water level, or rather by observing the flow of the water in the ditch, then you had better use a six inch tile where a three inch tile would be abundant on a perfect grade, because the grade line will have many inequalities in it, and you must make an allowance for the parts below grade to be filled up with silt. If these inequalities, upand down, be less than 6 inches, then some water will continue to flow from a six inch tile, as in Fig. 2. Figs. J and 3 represent tile laid on an imperfect grade. The dark portion represents the silt which has collected in points below the grade line; the light, that part not filled. In Fig. 1 the tile is choked with silt and is useless. In Fig. 2 the tile is partly filled at C, F and G, and its capacity has been limited to that of the narrowest point, as at F.

The probabilities are that the inequalitirely filled with silt and cease to be of any use, as shown in Fig. 1 above. However great the care taken in laying tile, there are liable to be slight inequalities. These should, however, be reduced to the minimum. Where there are not more than 2 inches fall in 100 feet, and where we have nothing better than the eye to determine it, it is very easy to go from 2 to 3 inches below the true grade line without discovering it. This would cause a three inch tile to be strangulated, and hence useless. If tile are properly laid on a grade of an inch to 100 feet, it will be sufficient in most soils. Such a grade is over 4 feet to the mile, which is greater than the fall in many of our rivers. By placing tile in on as perfect a grade as possible it need not be so large as otherwise needed. The cost of the tile depends on the size. Thus, 3 inch about 18 cents per rod; 7 inch. 70 cents per rod; 5 inch, 55 cents per rod; 6 inch, 50 cents per rod; 7 inch. 70 cents per rod; 6 inch, 50 cents per rod; 7 inch. 70 cents per rod; 8 inch, 50 cents per rod; 7 inch. 70 cents per rod; 8 inch, 50 cents per rod; 9 inch, 35 cents per rod; 6 inch, 50 cents per rod; 10 inch, 10 cents per rod;

The Wyandete and the Indian Game.

It has appeared to me for the past two or three seasons, says a writer in The Fanciers' Journal, that the Wyandete and the Indian Game are the two breeds which the supporters of the all around fowl of the future will have to look to for assistance in the course of their breeding operations, and certainly not finer table birds than the latter can be found in this part of the world. Crossed with Dorkings or grade Dorkings they grow to an immense size, as we all know, while the quality and toothsomeness of their flesh are unexcelled. It somehow, however, appears that many of our judges of dead or table poultry are disposed to ignore the great property of the delicacy of the meat in the birds before them and are more largely influenced by mere depth of keels and breadth of breasts than might be expected or is desirable. The appearance of the Dorking's fifth toe seems to exercise an irresistible fascination over some of them, and speaking seriously I honestly believe that, however excellent in all table properties other competitors might be that come before them, we have one or two judges who would pass them over in favor of a bird possessed of this superfluous excreecence.

pound each and the hind ones 12 ounces, according to The American Agriculturist, which makes the following computation: If four ounces are added to each shoe, let us see what a difference it will make. In plowing, cultivating and many other farm operations a horse will walk from 10 to 20 mHes a day and advances about four feet at a step. At each step the horse lifts half a pound extra on its two feet, or 666 pounds in every mile. In a day's work of 15 miles the horse would life 9,000 pounds extra, or nearly five tons. If the force required to lift this five tons of iron could be expended in the work the horse is doing, much more could be accomplished. In the light of these facts is it any wonder that when young horses begin to wear shoes they soon become leg weary, have their step shortened and acquire a slow walking gait?

A Triss Mixed.

A worthy materamilias, whose children were troubled with severe coughs, wrote to ask the editor of a paper to insert a remedy under the heading of "Answers to Correspondents." On looking over the paper a few days afterward she found the following answer marked with her initials:

"If they are not too young, peel them carefully, steep them in boiling water with plenty of salt and keep them eight days in brine."

The subeditor had mistaken the column and substituted for the desired remedy a recipe for "picking onions."—Petit Journal. A Triffe Mixed.

BLACKMAIL IN RESTAURANTS.

among waiters has visibly increased. Everybody who knows anything about New York knows what that means—an exceedingly disagreesble state of affairs.

"The evil is worse in proportion to the respectability of the place," says a man about town. "In other words, the more expensive the meal the more liberal the tip, and the more insulting the waiters if it does not come up to their ideas of what the amount of the tip should be."

I have been making some personal investigations in this line myself and unhesitatingly indorse the above opinion. I have found that in every instance the waiter expected a tip whether he had served well or not, and that this expectation is made so baidly apparent that the attention of everybody in the vicinity is called to the fact to bear unwilling witness as to the extent of your liberality. Also that too small a tip will subject you to more pronounced insult that none at all; that any effort to correct abuse of this character by reporting the servant is more likely to multiply your had treatment than to reduce it.

If the executive clerk or propriet of one not recognize in you a valuable customer of the place, the chances are two one you will be received with more contempt than you got at the hands of the waiter. No one man in 500 thus of the waiter. No one man in 500 thus of the waiter. No one man in 500 thus creaded ever complains—he simply doesn't go back. Most city men and travelizes are not easily offended by waiters. Familiar with the ways of the waiter, thy wither pay up or ignore the intended offense. It is the sensitive man who is the more readill, blackmalled, or who, re-are not easily offended by waiters. Familiar with the ways of the waiter, they either pay up or ignore the intended offense. It is the sensitive man who is the more readily blackmailed, or who, resisting the levy, feels more keenly the insolence of the menial.

In my experiments, conducted at six different respectable restaurants, I found that the poorest waiters, the men who gave the poorest service, were the r st offensive. At one place where, at the suggestion of a friend interested in this class of human nature, we went back to the same waiter on the next day, the 's was such a visible reluctance to serv us that we were compelled to call the head waiter before we could get anything to eat. As my rule is to reward a servant proportionately for extra service and attention, and as some of these men rendered this service and got nothing, I cherish no hard feelings against them for the look of cold disappointment with which they greeted our departure. Indiscriminate tipping has made tipping useless practically, so far as good service is concerned. It has become merely so much blackmail, and the poorest service demands and receives the same reward earned by and cheerfully paid the bex. Mon are awful cowards and would rather be robbed outright than thought mean, even by a waiter.—New York Herald.

Bow Professor Blackle Apologued.

How Professor Blackie Apotogised.

Professor Blackie was lecturing to a new class, with whose personnel he was imperfectly acquainted. A student rose to read a paragraph, his book in his left hand. "Sir," thundered Blackie, "hold your book in your right hand,"—and as the student would have spoken—"No words, sir! Your right hand," I say!" The student held up his right arm, ending piteously at the wrist. "Sir, I has nae right hand," he said. Before Blackie could open his lips there arose a storm of hisses, and by it his voice was overborne. Then the professor left his place and went down to the student he had unwittingly hurt and put his arm around the lad's shoulders and drew him close, and the lad leaned against his breast. "My boy," said Blackie—he spoke very softly, yet not so softly but that every word was audible in the hush that had fallen on the classroom—"my boy, you'll fortive me that I was overrough! I did not know—I did not know!" He turned to the students, and with a look and tone that came straight from his heart he said, "And let me say to you all, I am rejoiced to be shown I am teaching a class of gentlemen." Scottish lads can cheer as well as hiss, and that Blackie learned.—San Francisco Argonaut.

"Is there a note in this town?" I inquired.

"Thar sin't," he replied quite to the point.

"Isn't there any place for strangers to stop at?"

"Well, yes," he said hesitatingly, "thar's a boardin house whar nobody but strangers stops. Anybody that knowed anything about it wouldn't stop thar."

The drummer sighed.
"I tried it," he said in conclusion, "and the native was right,"—Detroit Free Press.

Generalship and Epileptic Fits.

Mow to Stop Shoes From Squeaking.

When your shoes squeak, go to a shoemaker and have him put a peg in the middle of the sole, and there will be no more loud proclamations. Another thing, when you buy a pair of new shoes and they hurt you, put water in them and let it remain for a minute, then pour it out, and if your shoes hurn or hurt you after that you can say this is wrong. The water takes all the natural heat out of the leather and makes the shoes comfortable.

Mow to Make Pentitees.

Mustard poultices are made by mixing equal quantities of mustard, cornmeal and flour with warm water until thick enough to be spread on a cloth without running. Spread it on part of an oblong of old nuslin, fold the other part over and apply. All poultices are spread in this way. If desired or necessary, as with flazsed or in bread poultices, join the edges with thread.

A flaxeed poultice is made by pouring over ground flaxseed enough boiling water to make it the consistency of thick cream and letting it simmer a few minutes.

To prepare bread and milk as a poultice, let stale bread or crackers simmer in milk until it can be spread smoothly on cloth. A cornmeal poultice is made by stirring the meal into water as if paparing mush. It need cook only a few minutes.

Practical Philasthropy.

An excellent steward of this world's goods is Augustus Hemenway, a retired farmer of Canton, Mass. He invited all the public school teachers of that town, 36 in number, to take a 10 days' trip to the World's fair at his expense.

This is practical philanthropy of a kind that warms the heart and increases confidence in the goodness of human nature. It is an easy matter to advise every one to visit the exposition, but there are thousands of people anxious to follow the advice who are confronted with the perplexing and discouraging problem of ways and means. Underpuld schoolteachers, struggling clergymen, men and women to whom the expenditure of $100 for an onting means aerious sacrifices for the remainder of the year, may be found in all parts of the country, longing to go to Chicago, but restrained by financial considerations. They are not suffering or destitute; they simply can not afford to indulge in the class, intelligent and appreciative, a friend like Mr. Hemenway is a friend indeed:—Rochester Democrat.

How to Make Blee Seringue.
Wash a cup of rice and put it over fire in a quart of water; boil 20 minutes, drain in a colander. Then Ald to it i pint of milk and 2 tablespoonfuls of butter. Beat together the yolks of 5 eggs and 2 cups of sugar. Then add these to rice and add grated yellow rind of a lemon and juice of two. Mix and turn in to a baking dish. Bake 20 minutes. Beat the whites of the eggs until light, not dry; add 6 tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and beat for 10 minutes. Put this over the hot padding, dust thickly with powdered sugar and brown in a quick oven for a moment. Serve ice cold. Nice to make Saturday to use Sunday. It was a very poor outlook on the part of the weather that greefed the eyes of the officers of, and all those in any way interested in the Weymouth Agricultural and Industrial society, and it was feared that there was a three days' storm in progress as there has been in years gone by. How to Make a Pastry Bag.

One-third of a yard of yard wide rubber sheeting will make three bags a foot square. Fold two opposite corners together, stitch along the edge and make a triangular bag. Cut off at the point to make an opening large enough to insert the end of a tin tube. It is convenient to have three bags, with openings of different sizes—one for celaris, one for lady fingers and one for frosting.

The tube for celaris is three quarters of an inch wide at the small end, that for lady fingers three-eighths of an inch and the frosting tubes of various sizes, some of them quite small. Fit the tube into the opening and fill the bag with the mixture. Draw the edges together and twist the top tightly to keep out the air. Hold the bag in the left hand, with the tube close to the place where the mixture is to be spread; press with the right hand and guide the mixture into any shape desired. A slight pressure is sufficient. When no longer needed, wash the bag in cold water—never in hot—and dry carefully.

How to Care For the Shoes.

If you would have your shoes retain their pristine freshness longer than a week, do not treat them with polishes and dressings, each one of which claim to be the best and least injurious. As soon as you come in from a walk dust them carefully with a soft fiannel kept for that purpose. Let them air, as you do your underclothes, and when they are dry stuff them with soft this way they will keep their shape for a long time.

When they are so worn that they must be brightened, rub them with a fiannel cloth and a little vaseline. Apply the grease carefully, not merely smearing it over the surface of the leather, but rubbing it in. When it is completely absorbed, rub briskly with fresh fiannel.

Do not wear your walking boots in the house, and do not walk in your slippers. Keep a pair of shoes suitable for each occasion. In this way, though you may seem to have an extravagant supply, you will be really displaying an economical spirit. Shoes worn indoors and out not only soon lose their brightness and neatness, but last only about one-third as long as if they were occasionally relieved. E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

We call the especial attention of our readers to the advertisements of the famous Ivorine Washing Powder that are appearing in this paper. A very attractive feature of this article is the cake of genuine Olive Oil Song for toilet use that the manufacturers have been putting in every package since the first of April of the present year. This is a splendid soap and soo much cannot be said for it. Hing and to much cannot be said for it. Hing J. Williams Co. are the largest manufacturers of shaving soap in the world. Their Yankee Shaving soap has been celebrated for half a century—and Ivorine Washing Powder is as popular with good heusekeepers as the Yankee shaving soapis with their husbands—and as necessary. We recommend all of our readers who do not already use Ivorine to give it a trial.

Are You Troubled With Rheumatism? The person who can answer "No" to the above question has every reason to be trained. There can be no possible doubt as to the truth of this statement. DO YOU THINK RHEUMATISM IS INCURABLE? A great many will answer, Well, I have had it a long time and I have tried over-ing that has come before my notice, and I still have it, and as far as I am personal negrend it seems to me that I always will have it.

HAVE YOU EVER TRIED "RENOVIA?" Some will answer and say "No;" never heard of it. Others will say "Yes," have idn't do me any good. Still others will say and have said Yes, I have not only tried at am ready to testify that it has belped me. Others will say; If I thought it was also be a would try it. To those who have tried it and have not seemed to realise the DID IT COST YOU ANYTHING TO TRY IT?

No, it did not; all must say that. To those who have tried it and seem to think that it did not help them low Much and How Long Did You Try It? And How Long Mare You Had Rheumatism? Now these two last questions go well together. Consider them, for it takes it to untie a string with two knots in it than it does one, and it requires more paid the part of the sufferer who has jud Rheumatish a long time than on the part of two has just found out that he has Rheumatism. We will let you try RENOVIA free. If it helps you we will charge you save the per week as long as you take our Specific, and if it does not help you it will cost you the trouble of coming after it. Early American Sculptors.

It is worthy of special notice that when Ruab begar to model in clay not one of the artists who have given celebrity to our native sculpture had seen the light of day. Frazer was not born until 1180, nor Ezekiel Augur of New Haven u. til 1791. The latter was originally in the Prince of Detectives.

Vidocq, the great French detective, was born in Arras in 1775. He began life as a baker and early became the terror of his companions by his athletic frame and violent disposition. At the same time he was a notorious thief, and after many disgraceful alventures he enlisted in the army. In 1700 he returned to Paris with some money, which, how ever, he soon squandered. Next he was sentenced at Lille to eight years' harlabor for forgery, but repeatedly escaped, and in 1808 he became connected with the Paris police as a detective.

His previous career enabled him to render important services, and he was appointed chief of the safety brigade, chiefly composed of reprieved convicts, which purged Paris of the many dangerous classes. In 1818 he received a full pardon, and his connection with this service lasted until about 1828, when he settled at St. Mande as a paper manufacturer. Soon after the revolution of 1830 he became a political detective, but with little success. In 1818 he was again employed under the republican government, but he died penniless in 1837.—Cincinnati Comunercial Gazette.

Cinderella and Her Silpper.

In some villages in Japau robbers are tried and convicted by ballot. Whenever a robbery is committed the ruler of the hamlet summons the entire shale population and requests them to write on a slip of paper the name of the person they suspect as having committed the crime. The one receiving the largest number of ballots is declared duly "elected" and is accordingly hanged. This system, like all ofhers, has its peculiar advantages. It insures the punishment of somebody for every robbery committed, whereas under the system in most civilized countries in nine cases out of ten no punishment is inflicted on anybody for the crime. Of course they may not "elect" the guilty person, but dispose of some other character equally as bad. There is much in the system to commend it to other nations.—Pomona

First Judicial Honors For a Woman.
To Honry VIII belongs the honor of having conferred judicial rights upon a woman. Lady Anne Berkeley of York was allowed by the sovereign, who had the widest experience of the virtues of women, to sit as a judge, appoint a cormission and actually to pass sentence a some men who had been killing her c er and despoiling her park. The sentence is not recorded, but the fact remains that at least one woman has exercised judicial rights.—New York Sun.

His Courage Failed.

A pallid youth with a high forehead stood in the midst of a group of men whose wild eyes and crumpled shirt bosoms bespoke a devotion to the principle of liberty to exist without labor.

"Dost thou swear"—

The pailid youth was holding his right hand aboft and looking very solemn.

"To resist despotic power so far as in thee lies and to destroy tyrants at every opportunity, according to the principles of anarchy?"

The youth was silent. Great drops of perspiration stood upon his brow, and his limbs trembled beneath him.

"Speak," they commanded.

The Eathetic Sense In Animals.

Animals possess in an appreciable manner certain tastes indicating an elementary sense of the beautiful. This sense is not present in all animals, and those who do possess it manifest it in different degrees. But it is sufficient to know that its existence can be recognized. Birds are particularly gifted in this manner. They have a taste for bright colors and melodious sounds, and most frequently the male subjugates and fascinates his mate with the beauty of his plumage or the flexibility of his vocal organs. There are besides other birds who show this asthetic sense in a singular manner.

One of these is the baya. He has a passion for brilliant and variegated objects, and he has a habit of ornamenting the entrance to his nest, which is built with infinite art and elegance, with a variety of objects gathered by hits from all quarters, which happen to strike his fancy. Among them are brilliantly colored feathers of other birds, bright bits of shells, bits of stuffs, and the bird struts about in the midst of all this with evident pleasure.

Insects also possess a marked æsthetic sense. They prefer certain colors, and the plants which depend upon them for fertilization show an entirely different variety of colors from those of plants whose fertilization is affected by means of the wind. Musical sounds also affect different animals in a marked manner. They have their preferences and their antipathnes. Review of Reviews. His voice was tremulous, but very ear nest.

A Bright Lad,

Ten years of age, but who declines to give his name to the public, makes this authorized, considential statement to us:

"When I was one year old, my mamma died of consumption. The doctor said that I, too, would soon die, and all our neighbors have to be able to wait, because I would never be able to wait, because I would weak and puny. A gathering formed and broke under my arm. I hust my finger and it gathered and threw out pieces of bone. If I hust myself so as to break the skin, it to take lots of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It has made me well and strong."

T. D. M., Norcatur, Kans.

There is a season after corn has been harvested and before the advent of winter during which we must depend on grass as the source of food for our flocks and herds; otherwise we must draw upon winter stores to feed them. The need of some useful folder plant of this season has being been recognized, and now Thomas Shaw, professor of agriculture at the Ontario college, gives the assurance that the rape plant is adapted to large areas in the United States. In a report to the department of agriculture he says:

The soils of the prairies will doubtless be found suitable for this crop where the summers are not too dry and warm. And in large sections in all parts where the climatic conditions resemble those of Ontario it will doubtless be found that rape will grow readily. This would mean that rape can be successfull grown in all the states bordering on the Dominion of Canada and in several of those that lie farther to the south. Whether it would furnish winter pasture in the more southerly states and whether it would grow seed as a paying crop in these can be determined only by actual test. The heat of the sun in such latitudes would doubtless be fatal to its successful growth in midsummer.

It is now proposed to build silos com-plete and then ship the parts to any por-tion of the country ready for setting up. Indiana claims a fine wheat crop.

The American Bee Journal is authority for the statement that there will be a large yield of honey this year.

a large yield of honey this year.

There is a scarcity of fodder reported in Great Britain, France and Germany, all of which countries are importing hay from the United States.

Butchers in various parts of New York city are beginning to experiment with electrical fans. They say that meats remain fresh longer in a room where the air is kept in motion, and they also find that the revolving of the little fan blades keeps away the flies.

Information given by the department of agriculture makes it appear that the winter wheat crop will not exceed 250,000,000 bushels and may not be more than 200,000,000. The con litton is 74. The spring wheat condition is also very poor, and its yield will not exceed 150,100,000 bushels.

sam be carted from the field in a very hort time, as it will not need so much drying in the sun. When the field is unevenly fipened, it is also better to wait until the field is good and ripe, but not until the grain becomes hard and dead ripe. The green portion as a rule will ripen up well enough in the shock or even in the barn and stack. The dew has very little bad effect either upon the straw or grain, and if the wheat was dry the night before it can be carted in early in the morning with impunity, according to the authority quoted.

as firm and flexible as that of the wrists; that the thimbpiece is broad enough; that the fingers are neither too short not too long, and the hand of the glove large enough to prevent the palm from fold-ing into creases.

The glove is the most forcible example of the adage about trees growing as the twig is bent. If a glove is put on for the first time carelessly, with seams awry and finger ends not snng, it is hopeless to try to smooth it out at a subsequent wearing. The seams will be twisted and the fingers baggy so long as the glove endures. That is the reason it is wise to hole that it does not immediately ray and pull out of the goods. Take a long thread of darning cotton to begin with and run it at least half an inch along the goods on each side of the hole. Continue this until the hole is snugly covered. Now cross these threads in the regular darning style, taking care that the same precaution is observed. A large hole requires a patch. Such holes almost always occur in the heel, so that in treating of the method of mending them it is as fo to take the heel for a model.

From the leg of an old stocking cut a kite shaped piece about 5 inches long and 4 inches across. Turn the stocking wrong side out and lay the kite upon the heel so that the long pointed end runs up the back of the leg and the lower rounded part is at the base of the heel. "Run" down the center of the kite with a stoul linen thread, taking rather large loss stitches. Now "run" in the same way across the kite shaped piece, letting the thread be very slack. Next sew the patch tightly to the heel by stitching it around the outside. If deftly done, there will be neither wrinkle nor crease. Patche made of material other than bits of old stockings are apt to be harsh.
